CONTRACT LET FOR BIG BAY
BRIDGE*COAST CONSTRUCTION COMPANY
CONTRACTS TO BUILD WEBB
SPAN FOR $10,000,000; WORK TO BE FINISHED BY JULY 1, 1925.

The contract for the great $10,000,000 Webb bridge across the bay from Coyote Point to Alvarado was let at a meeting held in San Francisco last Friday. The Coast Construction Company was the successful bidder for the vast undertaking, and filed a bond of $1,000,000 for the successful performance of its contract. The contract was let in the offices of Attorney William Metson in San Francisco.

The Coast Construction Company is headed by Bailey Hipkens, formerly vice-president of the Foundation Company of New York, one of the largest construction firms in the United States. During the past two years Hipkens has headed construction companies which completed over $20,000,000 worth of construction work on the coast.

Hipkens stated that his company will start construction surveys immediately, and he is confident that the great structure will be completed by July 1, 1925.

Thus another step is taken in the great undertaking to bridge the bay, a step that is expected to have tremendous bearing on the future progress of the peninsula district.

It is stated that at the suggestion of Frank Elbridge Webb the bridge will be named San Francisco Memorial Bridge in commemoration of the men from this region who fought in the war.

Mojica, Mrs. E. Sands, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lopez, Mrs. M. Garcia, and Mrs. H. Veit. As Monday was Mrs. Lopez's birthday, many of her friends surprised her on Wednesday. The evening was spent in dancing and games were played. Refreshments were served. The young people left at midnight, all having enjoyed the evening.

OWNER OF SOLO CAFE
SENTENCED TO JAIL

For selling liquor to young girls, Sarafino Gioni, proprietor of the Solo Cafe, Colma, was fined $300 Tuesday and given a sentence of three months in the county jail at Redwood City. The sentence was pronounced by Federal Judge Van Fleet, San Francisco, who characterized the charge against Gioni as "one of the most aggravating offenses in connection with violations of the liquor laws." Gioni asked leniency on the ground that he served two years with the navy during the world war. The plea was made after prohibition officers had testified they found boys and girls intoxicated in the Solo. "Your war record is no excuse for selling liquor," Judge Van Fleet said. "The sale of liquor to young girls is one of the worst offenses possible among violations of the Volstead act."

O. E. S. WHIST PARTY

Twenty-five tables were filled with players at the whist party given at Fraternal Hall Monday evening by Ruth Chapter, O. E. S. Sixteen hands were played. The winner of the first prize was A. B. Middleton, score 124; second, D. T. Norris, 120; Dorothy Hein and P. Larsen tied for third with 119; Mrs. Thomas Schmidt, Mrs. D. W. Scott, H. G. Hyland and Gertrude Smith tied for next prize with 118; Mrs. F. A. Knock, Mrs. R. Kay, and A. C. Hein tied with 117 points. After the playing the tables were moved together, forming long tables across the hall, and refreshments of ice cream and cakes were served.

PLANS NOW READY FOR BIG MAY FETE*Booths for Many Exhibits Spring Into Being; King Tut and Ancient Art a Feature.

Carpenters have been at work this week erecting booths on the vacant lot north of the bank for the big May fete planned by the local Woman's Club. This event is planned to eclipse all former efforts of the club in this city. There will be many concessions, some of them that will be remembered long after the fair has become a memory.

One of these will be the art gallery. It is declared that this gallery will be entirely different from anything ever seen here before. King Tut and his treasures will be featured, and residents of this city who have read with interest of the ancient Egyptian king should not fail to see this gallery.

Another feature planned to lend gaiety to the occasion is a street dance. This is expected to be a drawing card worth while.

From the number of booths being built there is every indication that the fair will cover a wide variety of exhibits.

TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO IN SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO

From the files of The Enterprise of May 2, 1896.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Vandenberg will be pleased to learn that they will soon become residents of our town again. They came down from the city Wednesday to make arrangements for their return. Nearly every one knows Frank Murray. For two years he has been an employee of the Western Meat Company and is one of the most steady and exemplary young men in town. He has surprised his acquaintances by committing an act of which his most intimate friends would not have suspected him. While his visits to San Francisco have grown more and more frequent of late there was nothing secret about them, and they were attributed to a natural desire for the pleasures of the metropolis. His friends did not dream he was contemplating an act that must affect all his future life. Yet such was the case. Frank has abandoned bachelorhood and joined the ranks of the married. The boys are preparing to give him a jolly reception when he brings his fair bride home.

The San Mateo county Republican committee met at Redwood City April 25th and appointed delegates to the state and congressional conventions, to be held in Sacramento, May 5th. W. J. Martin was appointed delegate from the first district. The delegates go unpledged, but favoring William McKinley for president.

On Wednesday last a vessel landed at our wharf loaded with bran for the Jersey Farm. Open that road direct to the farm and we will soon have all its freight and a good share of its trade coming our way.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the files of The Enterprise of May 2, 1903.

The surveys for the electric road have been completed.

S. Mori and Mike Fahey of San Pedro valley were in town Wednesday. Frank Miner has a contract to grade 4000 yards for the Jupiter Steel Company.

Joseph Ingram and George Wallace have opened a saloon in the McCuen building on Grand avenue.

Henry Kneese returned Saturday from Los Angeles, where he has been the past three months.

Roadmaster Carmody has transferred his force of road makers to the hill south of town on San Bruno road. Thursday his force of men finished grading that portion of road at the entrance to Tanforan Park.

The bricklayers are busy on the new four-story addition to the Western Meat Company's packing house.

A. C. Gage, editor of the Santa Clara News, with his wife is spending a few days here visiting Mrs. A. McSweeney.

All the men who were laid off at the W. P. Fuller paint works some time ago have returned to their work, the last going back Friday morning. Monday night for the second time the saloon of Rogers & Hawes was entered and a small sum in cash as well as sundry liquors and cigars carried off.

DEPARTMENT GOES TO FIRE AT CEMETERY

Thursday night of last week the local fire department was called to a fire at Mount Olivet Cemetery. A building at the cemetery was destroyed.

Any marriage will be a failure if the persons entering it are failures.

BELT RAILROAD CO.
ELECTS NEW MANAGER*Chicago Traffic Expert Is Chosen to Direct Affairs of Local Line.

The annual meeting of the South San Francisco Belt Railway Company was held Monday in San Francisco. The directors elected for the ensuing year were A. C. Owens, R. H. Benedict, B. P. Lillenthal, J. O. Snyder, W. J. Martin. The directors' meeting following elected W. J. Martin, president; A. C. Owens, vice-president and traffic manager; R. H. Benedict, secretary and treasurer.

The advent of Mr. Owens in the management of the Belt Railway is generally regarded as a progressive step in the affairs of South San Francisco. He assumed his duties May 1st.

Mr. Owens has been connected with the transportation department of Swift & Co. for over twenty years. He brings to his new association ripened experience and training in the solution of industrial transportation problems. His joining the South San Francisco industrial family at this time is in harmony with the recently adopted expansion policy of the South San Francisco Land and Improvement Company to give industries the benefit of the most advanced, constructive methods of transportation, both from an operating and a rate standpoint.

One of the contemplated improvements for the benefit of the present and future South San Francisco industries is the joining of the Pacific Car Demurrage Bureau by the Belt Railway. It will be Mr. Owens' purpose, working in co-operation with Lloyd W. Thayer, general manager of the land company, to be available for consultation on transportation matters relating to South San Francisco. Such co-operation will result in the further industrial growth of South San Francisco, to which it is entitled by reason of its physical advantages and its location within the switching district of San Francisco.

LOCAL STREET RAILROAD SHOWS LARGE EARNING

The South San Francisco Railroad and Power Company, operating in South San Francisco, reports to the Railroad Commission for the year 1922 that its operating revenue was $42,568.83; operating expenses, $35,870.69, giving a net operating revenue of $6,698.14. Interest, rent, taxes and other deductions totaled $4077.02. The net corporate income for the year was $2621.12. The surplus at the beginning of the year amounted to $36,230.82 and miscellaneous deductions were $3500, leaving an accumulated surplus at the end of the year of $35,351.94.

A Home Trading Sermonette

Here is a clever burlesque that is going the rounds. We do not know where it started, but it contains a lot of truth nevertheless:

"A dry goods merchant was starting downtown when his wife reminded him of his most important duty during the day. 'Now, my dear, be sure to send to the city for that new radio outfit, so we can have it for Sunday. You know our old victrola is getting so that it is not fit to be heard.'

"Just a few blocks away the merchant who handles victrolas and furniture was sitting at breakfast with his family. The conversation drifted around to the near approach of school. 'And that reminds me, John,' said the lady who sat at the head of the table, 'I must be going to the city not later than next week. I must get school clothes and see about a fall suit for myself, and while there perhaps I had better see about the new lace curtains for the front windows.'

"An hour or two later a leading grocer stepped into the bank to buy a draft which he was going to send to a catalogue house for a swell bedroom suite.

"How's business?" asked the banker. 'Oh, not so very good,' replied the grocer; 'things are dull just now.'

"Before the banker finished writing the draft a dapper young man with a grip stepped up and asked how everything was. The banker seemed glad to see him. He was a representative of a big printing establishment in a near-by city. He and the banker chatted pleasantly for a few minutes, after which the young man inquired casually of his friend behind the window if he wanted anything. 'Well, yes,' replied the banker. 'I believe I do. Print us 5000 drafts, 5000 checks and a couple thousand letter-heads.'

"The young man thanked his friend cordially and hustled out. "That night the local business men had a meeting at the town hall to discuss the growth of the mail order evil. All the gentlemen mentioned in the narrative delivered short talks. They agreed that the farmers were guilty of treason to their home merchants when they persisted in buying their goods from mail order houses, and the meeting closed by adopting strong resolutions against trading away from home."—Des Moines Publishers' Review.

IN THE COURT OF JUDGE J. G. WALKER*Jow Franko Arrested for Having Still and Fined $300.

Jow Franko of 455 Baden avenue was arrested by local officers last Friday night for operating a liquor still. The still was found at his home, together with a considerable quantity of grapes, corn, mash, and other ingredients for the making of liquor. Brought into court at a night session just after his arrest, Franko pleaded guilty and was fined $300.

The trial of D. S. Wright, one of the proprietors of the Saddle Rock, on a charge of violating the prohibition law, was postponed from May 1st to May 12th.

The hearing of John Colombo, arrested some time ago for the possession of liquor, has been set for May 11th.

Word has been received here that the case of A. Barsuglia, tried and convicted in this city for the possession of liquor, will come up in the superior court at Redwood City before Judge G. H. Buck, May 12th, on appeal.

Recently Sam Anderson, an employee of the Dugout, was arrested for beating a Mexican, Joe Careasco by name. Brought into court the complainant did not appear, so Anderson was discharged with a reprimand.

P. G. AND E. TO SPEND
$2700 IN WORK HERE

Owing to the great increase in power load at the South San Francisco substation of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, it has become necessary for the reconstruction of lines serving consumers out of this power house. The work involved will cost in the neighborhood of $2733.

In his annual message to the stockholders of the company, A. F. Hockenbeamer states that operating expenses for last year, including depreciation and other reserves, amounted to $27,019,074. Of this, $8,989,650 was paid out in wages to men and women engaged in the purely operating activities of the company. This accounts for 23 cents of the customer's dollar and does not include an item of $5,375,000 paid for wages of employees engaged in new construction. So that the company's total payroll last year exceeded $14,368,000. "All of which," said Treasurer Hockenbeamer, "was disbursed to California wage earners."

P. P. P. BOOSTERS
COMING HERE TONIGHT*Speakers to Tell Local Residents All
About Great Pageant of Progress at San Carlos.

South San Francisco is going to entertain a company of boosters for the Peninsula Pageant of Progress in this city tonight (Thursday). These boosters will come from all over the peninsula as far south as Palo Alto, and it is expected that a live meeting will result. All towns on the peninsula are much interested in the big fair being planned to be held at San Carlos from May 26th to June 3d, and many interesting things about the fair will be learned by local people who attend tonight's meeting. A light lunch will be served after the meeting.

The great pageant and fair promises to be the biggest thing of its kind held on the peninsula. The largest tent in the world, according to Secretary R. H. K. Smith, is now being put together and will soon appear upon the grounds.

A camp of Mendocino Indians will be a feature of the exposition, the Indians expecting to erect their village next week.

A feature that is arousing much interest all over the peninsula is the election of a queen to preside over the exposition. Many girls from different west-of-the-bay cities have already been nominated, and votes are beginning to pile up. A nomination blank for the stating of choice for queen was published in last week's Enterprise and again in the present issue, and it is quite likely that several local girls will be among the candidates. Votes in the contest are being sold by the management of the fair and the successful girl will be given a $250 diamond ring.

It is expected that when the boosters arrive in town tonight they will be given a rousing welcome. The welcome will be held at Fraternal Hall, beginning at 8 o'clock.

MRS. ELIZA LEWIS IS CALLED TO REST

Mrs. Eliza Lewis died Wednesday night after an illness extending over a period of several years. Mrs. Lewis had lived in South San Francisco since November of 1920, when she came to this city with her son, J. P. Lewis, and family.

Mrs. Lewis was born in Monmouthshire, England, in 1857. She was married in 1874 to William Lewis, and of this union five children were born. The family came to the United States in 1887, settling in Cheboygan, Mich. Mr. Lewis Sr. died in 1899. In 1915 his widow moved to Detroit, where she lived with her son, Fred, until coming to this city.

The deceased leaves three sons, James P. Lewis, foreman of The Enterprise mechanical department; E. H. Lewis of this city, and Fred C. Lewis of Detroit, and two daughters, Mrs. Edward Stremann of this city and Mrs. Charles F. Hursley of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Mrs. Lewis was an active member of Grace Episcopal Church. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon in charge of Rev. E. H. Molony and Rev. C. L. Peck, former pastors of the local Episcopal and Methodist churches here.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HOLDS LIVELY MEETING TUESDAY

About 100 children and young people, members of the Sunday school of St. Paul's Methodist Church, assembled at Metropolitan Hall Tuesday evening for a banquet in honor of the "Live Wire" class of boys who won in a recent contest held among the classes of the Sunday school. Besides the children and young people most of the teachers were present, also the Rev. A. P. Beall, pastor of the church, Mrs. Beall and Miss Mildred Beall, and several visitors. After a delightful banquet enlivened by songs and class yells and talks by the different teachers, a short program was rendered by the children, Mrs. Beall having charge. The teachers and women of the church who arranged the banquet are expressing much gratitude to several of the stores and to the Virden Packing Company, all of whom helped to make the banquet possible.

S. F. DAILY IS BOOSTER FOR
THIS CITY*COMMERCIAL NEWS DEVOTES
TWO PAGES TO SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, ITS FACTORIES, BUILDINGS AND CLIMATE.

In a splendid "Bridge the Bay" edition out today (Thursday), the San Francisco Commercial News devotes two entire pages to South San Francisco. Pictures of this city's leading industrial plants are shown and a concise statement of the activities of each made. There is also given a list of the many business buildings erected in the business district lately.

The News says: "South San Francisco has a climate that adds to the mental and physical efficiency of its citizens. Never uncomfortably warm, never uncomfortably cold, is the climate which one finds in this coming Pittsburgh of the West.

"From now on South San Francisco is decidedly on the map economically. The municipality itself reflects the enterprise of its citizens, who are primarily home-owners. It is now entering an era of development that will soon give it the predominant place it should have occupied twenty-five years ago because of its natural advantages."

HORTICULTURIST FINDS
GOOD SPRAY FOR APHID

County Horticulturist A. W. Tate has been conducting experiments at Colma to find an effective spray for the potato aphid. The result of his work is that Mr. Tate recommends a 3 per cent "nicotico dust," composed of nicotine and sulphur. Used as a dust, it reaches the insects under the leaves better than as a liquid. For the potato blight Mr. Tate is recommending the liquid spray known as "Black Leaf 40."

DAILY CITY CLERK RESIGNS

Charles L. Biebel, for many years city clerk at Daly City and one of the best-known men in the north end of the county, has resigned from his position, the city trustees accepting his resignation at a meeting Monday evening of last week. Mr. Biebel stated he wished to give his whole time to his private interests. Berton C. Ross was named as his successor.

All the candy was sold before 1 o'clock and the profit was $10.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Crisis in the Franco-German Contest Over Reparations Seems to Be Near.

SOCIALISTS PRESSING CUNO

Rosenberg Urges Adoption of Secretary Hughes' Plan—Government Acts to Stop Sugar Speculations—Grain Futures Act Upheld by the Supreme Court.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ELBERT H. GARY, head of the United States Steel corporation, says the labor shortage is likely to grow serious, and urges that the immigration bars be let down for the admission of more cheap labor from Europe. The administration declares itself against any such policy, refusing to lower admission standards or relax the requirements governing immigration. Have you devoted any thought to this question, and if so, what is your opinion?

IT SEEMS likely that the crisis in the contest between France and Germany will come sooner than had been expected, but the nature of the settlement, if one is reached, is as uncertain as it ever has been. In other words, the two contestants show no sign of approaching an agreement, and from no other source has there appeared a plan that seems likely to be adopted. It may be the whole thing will be put up to Uncle Sam, and that the solution will depend on his willingness to sacrifice a large part of the war debt owed him by Europe in return for German bonds of so little probable value that they might be considered mere scraps of paper.

Premier Poincare, speaking at the unveiling of a war memorial in Dunkirk, unequivocally pledged the French government to compel Germany to pay the reparations and swore that the occupation of the Ruhr and Rhineland should continue until the payments have been executed. He gave warning that unless the munitions manufacturing centers in the Ruhr were held, Germany would be ready in 1925 to refuse all payments and to defy the allies.

Berlin reacted strongly to this speech, which the German government denounced as a "sermon of violence." Foreign Minister von Rosenberg made a long address to the reichstag in which he repeated the oft-heard assertion that the French policy contemplated absolute paralysis of Germany's economic life. He rejected the demand of the German Socialists that a definite financial offer be made to France, but he then became rather more conciliatory and seemed actually to be extending a hand of peace. "The peoples of Germany and France," said he, "have only one choice—either to live together or go down to ruin together. If France would make up her mind to recognize Germany's right to life and liberty and respect Germany's territories and rights of sovereignty, and that her German neighbor does not dream of wounding France's sensibilities or sense of honor, then the ice would be broken. Then might be fulfilled the dream of a new era of prosperity and happiness for Europe from co-operation of the German and French peoples."

Baron von Rosenberg called on the civilized world to support and on France to accept the plan suggested by Secretary of State Hughes, that an international court of financiers be established to determine what Germany has paid in the way of reparations, what she can and shall pay further, and how the payments can be accomplished. If this plan were adopted, he said, Germany would ask an international loan and force her industry to give security for it, and thus obtain immediate cash for the allies.

It was intimated in Berlin that the government would ask Secretary Hughes for advice as to how this financial court might be brought into existence.

FRENCH experts are working on a revision of their reparations plan representing the utmost concessions the Poincare government will make. In brief, it is this:

First, a two years' moratorium for Germany on payments in cash, but continued occupation of a portion of the Ruhr as a guarantee.

Second, Germany is to continue the delivery to France of materials to a total of 26,000,000,000 gold marks ($6,500,000,000), and also pay, after the moratorium, 26,000,000,000 gold marks in cash, which represents France's 52 per cent of 50,000,000,000 gold marks ($12,500,000,000) in A and B series bonds.

Third, France is to write off such amounts from the 82,000,000,000 gold marks ($20,500,000,000) C bonds as its creditors may reduce its debts. With its share of 52 per cent, France's holdings of these bonds represent a trifle more than 40,000,000,000 gold marks ($10,000,000,000). France owes Great Britain the equivalent of 12,000,000,000 gold marks ($3,000,000,000), and the United States 10,000,000,000 ($2,500,000,000).

All this does not seem to presage early accord, and the assertion made above, that a crisis appears to be rather near, is based on the fact that the conditions are fast becoming unbearable. French measures of repression in the occupied region are being extended and made more stringent daily; many industries are shutting down; unemployment is increasing, and the workers have almost lost all patience. The mark last week was tottering on the edge of the precipice of almost utter worthlessness. Though the industrialists have been supporting the government's policy of passive resistance, some of them are now joining with the Socialists in the demand that a definite offer be made to France. Chancellor Cuno may soon have to yield or resign.

That France is "using a whale to catch a sprat" is the conclusion of the British Labor party's delegation that investigated the Ruhr occupation. Its report says in part:

"In our judgment the situation cannot adequately be dealt with by any machinery under the treaty of Versailles, but requires a new instrument, international in character, in the framing of which the German people should participate."

TWELVE hundred members of the National Economic league council, including many of the most eminent men in America, have participated in a referendum on certain leading international questions. A considerable majority of them declare that the French occupation of the Ruhr to collect reparations is justifiable; that America should support a world court; that America should join the League of Nations, with reservations, and should promote an international conference on war finance problems. Slightly more than half thought the interest on war debts owed to the United States should be limited to 3 per cent.

THE Republican national committee doesn't approve of Lord Robert Cecil and "other propagandists" who are trying to convert the United States to the League of Nations idea. It has issued a statement denouncing the foreigners who come to America "to tell what a sordid, clay-footed, selfish people we are, simply because we refuse to become an active partner in Europe's bankruptcy and hatreds." The committee urges chambers of commerce and other organizations to quit lionizing these foreigners at their conventions and meetings and to feature instead American citizens who preach the good old gospel of Americanism and minding our own business.

PREMIER LENIN of Russia, still confined to his bed, sent to the opening session of the all-Russian communist congress the word that the soviet retreat must be stopped and the government must arouse itself against recent attacks from within which are aimed at re-establishment of capitalism. Zinovieff, who carried his chief's message, made mention of the protests against the prosecution of Catholic prelates. "We are not worried because the attitude towards Russia has grown sharper on account of the trial of Bishop Zepilak and the execution of Vicar General Budkiewicz," M. Zinovieff said. "We will shoot spies and traitors whether they are robed as priests or otherwise."

The soviet government will continue its monopoly of foreign trade, and Krassin, chief of that division, predicts that there will be large grain exports from Russia this year, these being forced by the low price of bread. Of course he did not mention the fact that general unemployment makes it impossible for the workers to buy bread, nor did he say anything of the millions of Russians who are still suffering for lack of the grain that is to be exported.

MUSSOLINI, premier of Italy, is confronted with one of the situations which he foresaw when he took control of the government—the defection of the Catholic or Populist party. A congress of that party at Turin decided to oppose certain policies of the Fascist leader and this was approved by the Vatican. The four members of the Catholic party in the cabinet were told by Mussolini either to support him or to resign. The premier told the Fascist at Milan they must be prepared for another and greater revolution. The outcome of the affair is still uncertain.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DAUGHERTY, after consultation with President Harding, on Thursday caused to be instituted injunction proceedings in New York to put an end to all trading in sugar futures. The defendants are the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange, and many individual members thereof, and a permanent injunction is asked. According to the government bill, the action is the result of "an orgy of speculation" which has driven up the price of sugar to the consumer. Assistant Attorney General Seymour, who has the case in charge, says the government is considering criminal proceedings under the Sherman law.

WORTHY of mention as a case of even-handed justice is the prosecution and conviction, in Philadelphia, of Henry Gibson Brock, wealthy banker and clubman, who, while intoxicated, ran his automobile into a group of persons getting on a street car and killed three of them. He admitted he had been drinking and had no recollection of the tragedy, whereupon Judge Audenried sentenced him to solitary confinement in the penitentiary for from six to ten years. He began his sentence at once.

CONSTITUTIONALITY of the Capper-Tincher grain futures act was upheld by the United States Supreme court, and grain exchanges were ordered to admit farmers' co-operative associations to membership. Chicago grain men explain that the act, while it ends corners in grain and may cramp the operations of the larger speculators, really legalizes instead of prohibiting trading in future deliveries. The exchanges become "contract markets" by virtue of being under control of the secretary of agriculture whose supervision will prevent the manipulation which the Supreme court found might be "detrimental to producers, shippers, consumers, and legitimate dealers in interstate commerce in grain."

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST has discovered that Chief Justice Taft is, by the will of Andrew Carnegie, the recipient of an annuity from a fund invested in steel bonds by Carnegie, and through his newspapers Hearst is conducting a campaign to force Mr. Taft from the Supreme court bench. It is a part of the campaign to change the Constitution so that a mere majority of the court shall not be able to declare unconstitutional an act of congress. Whatever the people of the country may think of the latter proposition, the clean minded among them can have no sympathy with the assumption or insinuation that Mr. Taft, or any other member of the highest court, could be influenced in his decisions by such a circumstance as forms the basis for the Hearst attack. It is slanderous and contemptible, and the Chief Justice need not give it a moment's thought.

As Mild as His Brother Is Emphatic

You would never suspect, say intimate friends of the new comptroller of the currency, Henry M. Dawes of Chicago (portrait herewith), that he was an own brother of Gen. Charles G. ("H-I and Maria") Dawes, who used to be comptroller and achieved fame as head of the budget bureau. By that these intimate friends mean that Brother Henry's speech is by comparison meek and mild and that he doesn't stage a war dance during a warm argument.

"He is retiring in nature, but a thorough financier," said one of his friends. "I have never known a more able man. It isn't difficult for him to form a judgment. He was trained that way. He is what might be called a conservative type. But he's also fearless. He plays an average game of golf, has a keen sense of humor and is a pleasant conversationalist. He has never run for office nor held one."

The new controller is connected with many financial institutions and holding companies, notably in the gas and electric field. He and his three brothers, Charles G., Rufus C. and Beman G. Dawes are sons of the late General Rufus R. Dawes, who commanded the Iron Brigade during the Civil war and later was a member of congress. The brothers were graduated from Marietta college. The controller went into the lumber business to manage family holdings, but about fifteen years ago severed these connections and went to Chicago to become treasurer of the various companies controlled by the Dawes interests.

"He is a great balance-wheel," said one man who knows him well.

New Lord Carnarvon Is Already Famous

This is a portrait, just arrived from overseas, of Henry George Alfred Marius Victor Francis Herbert, sixth earl of Carnarvon. All his life people will point to him and say: "There goes Lord Carnarvon! You know, Tut's tomb—Pharaoh's curse and all that!" Yes; he is the son of the Lord Carnarvon who uncovered the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen in the Valley of the Kings, near Luxor, and died soon after. Medical science says he died of pneumonia following blood poisoning from the bite of an insect. The superstitions are that he died because of the "curse of the Pharaohs" on those who should disturb their last sleep.

Americans have an additional interest in the young earl from the fact that in July, 1922, he married Miss Catherine T. Wendell of New York, who has relatives in Boston and Chicago.

Not very much is known here of the new earl. He had some sort of official duties in India, whence he hastened to his dying father's bedside in Cairo. He is immensely rich. His father owned about 36,000 acres, including Highclere Castle, in Hampshire and Brethly Park, Burton-on-Trent. His mother, the dowager Lady Carnarvon, is a godchild of the late Alfred Rothschild and, it is said, was substantially remembered in his will. Lord Carnarvon inherits his father's racing stud, which was prominent on the English turf.

Catherine, New Countess of Carnarvon

An up-to-date portrait of Catherine, Countess Carnarvon, is reproduced herewith. She was Miss Catherine T. Wendell of New York. Her marriage to Lord Portchester, only son of Lord Carnarvon, fifth earl of Carnarvon, took place July 17, 1922. The tragic death of the fifth earl recently at Cairo after uncovering the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen at Luxor, Egypt, focuses world-wide attention upon the young sixth earl and his countess, and interest in the young couple increases.

Lady Carnarvon is the daughter of the late Jacob Wendell, a New York commission merchant. He was a brother of Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard. The new countess has other relatives in Boston and in Chicago. The wedding in London was a brilliant society function, with a thousand guests, including Ambassador Harvey and the prince of Wales and titled men and women galore.

The Carnarvons are likely to remain long in the limelight, since the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen in the Valley of the Kings has been sealed up to await cooler weather in the fall. And nobody knows whether or not it contains the mummy of the Pharaoh.

W. Z. Foster Is Now Most Notorious Red

William Z. Foster, charged with violation of the Michigan law against criminal syndicalism, is just now the most notorious Red in America. The jury at St. Joseph, Mich., stood 6 to 6 for 38 ballots.

Foster was the first to face trial of the thirty-two men and women arrested as a result of the raid on the convention of the Communist party of America, held in the lonely dune country near St. Joseph last August.

The trial was the first test of the Michigan law against criminal syndicalism, passed during the war. The act makes it a felony punishable by ten years' imprisonment and up to $5,000 fine to advocate sabotage, crime, terrorism or other means of force and violence as a method of accomplishing political or industrial reform.

Foster, of course, regards the disagreement of the jury as a victory. Others say that the trial has served its purpose in that it has brought out clearly before the public the theory and practice of the Reds in this country.

For instance, Matthew Wolf of Chicago, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, regards with a cold eye the "hero" whom Chicago radicals greeted at a massmeeting upon his triumphant return from St. Joseph.

"To ignore Foster now is to destroy the great monster that has been made out of mere tissues of capitalized propaganda," reads his statement. "To disregard him is to inflict the greatest punishment that can be given him. He and his kind feed on notoriety. He and his kind die for want of it."

The KITCHEN CABINET

If this world affords true happiness, it is to be found in a home where love and confidence increase with years, where the necessities of life come without severe strain, where luxuries enter only after their cost has been carefully considered. We are told that wealth is a test of character—few of us have to submit to it. Poverty is the more usual test. It is difficult to be very poor and maintain one's self-respect.—A. Edward Newton.

GOOD THINGS FOR EVERYBODY

The following is a good standard recipe for tomato sauce:

Mince fine a slice of salt pork, cut one-eighth of an inch thick. Fry until light brown in color, then add one small onion finely-minced and a tablespoonful each of carrot, turnip and sweet pepper; brown lightly in the fat. Now add one and one-half quarts of tomatoes, if fresh, unpeeled; two cloves, a sprig of parsley and celery, and half a bay leaf. Simmer covered one hour, stirring occasionally. Rub all that will go through the colander and thicken with a tablespoonful each of butter and flour cooked together. Serve hot.

Tomato Soup.—Place one sweet pepper, one onion, one carrot and one turnip, all minced fine, in a saucepan. Add a sprig of parsley, one of celery, one leaf of cabbage, two cloves, two quarts of tomatoes and one quart of water. Cover and simmer one hour, stirring often. Add salt and pepper to season, two teaspoonfuls of sugar—more if needed—strain through a colander and thicken with a tablespoonful each of butter and flour. This may be prepared in this manner when tomatoes are plentiful in the fall, canned and the soup will be always ready.

Macaroni for Luncheon.—Cook three-fourths of a cupful of macaroni broken into inch-pieces in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, rinse in cold water and drain well. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter; cook in this a slice each of onion and carrot, then remove the vegetables, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, a little salt and a dash of pepper, one-half cupful each of beef broth and tomato puree, and cook until smooth and thickened. Add the macaroni to the sauce with one-half cupful of grated cheese. Cover and let stand over hot water. Serve very hot. Half a cupful of chopped ham or other cooked meat with or without the cheese may be added.

Purslane, belonging to the portulaca family, is a common weed, growing in sandy places. The little fleshy leaves are full of mineral salts and iron. They are cooked and served either hot or cold.

I have loved the feel of the grass under my feet, and the sound of running streams by my side. The hum of the wind in the tree tops has always been good music to me, and the face of the fields has often comforted me more than the faces of men.—John Burroughs.

REASONABLE GOOD THINGS

A crisp green salad is always agreeable and when served with the following dressing is quite nourishing:

Thousand Island Dressing.—Put into a small fruit jar one-half cupful of olive oil, the juice of half a lemon and half an orange, a teaspoonful of onion juice, one-fourth teaspoonful each of cayenne pepper and salt, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard, three sprigs of parsley, chopped fine. Put on the rubber and cover and shake vigorously. Green pepper chopped may be added, and some enjoy the acid slightly softened by the addition of a teaspoonful of powdered sugar.

Barbecue of Porterhouse.—Have a cut of porterhouse cut about three and one-half inches thick and containing a good piece of tenderloin. Trim into shape, removing most of the fat and skewering it into shape. Mix two tablespoonfuls of dry mustard with one teaspoonful each of salt and white pepper with a little cayenne, add to these four tablespoonfuls of creamed butter and rub the mixture well into the meat on both sides and edges. Place on a grate over a pan and set under the gas flame. Have two tablespoonfuls of olive oil mixed with one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and brush the steak every five minutes with this mixture, reducing the heat after the surface of the steak is seared. Cook forty-five minutes. The brush should be dipped into the drip from the pan after the juice of the steak has begun to drip. Rub with more mustard with the moistened brush, just before it goes to the table.

Barbecued Mutton.—Make a sauce by melting two tablespoonfuls of butter; to this add the juice of half a good-sized lemon, one-quarter cupful of currant jelly, one-quarter teaspoonful of prepared mustard, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of cayenne and one teaspoonful of grated orange peel. Reheat the thin slices of mutton in this sauce. Serve steaming hot; but do not cook.

Neelie May well.

THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1923

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT

A few years ago American heiresses were crazy to marry foreigners with titles. Princes and dukes were prime favorites, but any old bird with a "handle" was acceptable. A title was a title, regardless of the personality of the man who owned it.

The case of the Duke of Marlborough is an example. The duke married Consuelo Vanderbilt, and was shrewd enough to have $125,000 of the Vanderbilt money settled upon him.

The duke was so rotten Consuelo had to divorce him, but she couldn't divorce the $125,000 a year. That sticks to the duke for life.

Today American heiresses are not so keen after titles—not because our crop of heiresses are acquiring more sense, but simply for the reason that titles of nobility are becoming discredited articles and are no longer prized by women who have the money with which to purchase them.

But it is interesting to know that millions of dollars in good American gold are crossing the Atlantic every year to satisfy the vanity of women who have places where brains ought to have been.

If Kaiser William had written a book about himself a few years ago it would have had a tremendous sale at any fabulous price in any part of the world.

Today his memoirs, written since his abdication, are finding practically no sale in Germany even at 30 cents a copy.

Periodically the world changes its coat, and when the men in public office do not fit the coat they must step out and make room for others who can adjust themselves to its measurements.

The former war lord is no exception to the rule.

Is your circulation poor? Are you shy on pep? Are your heart beats becoming slow and weak?

In New York an electrician was knocked out by a sudden shock. His associates found that there was no pulse and his heart had ceased to beat. Presumably he was dead.

But instead of rushing off for doctors they seized clubs and beat the victim unmercifully on the soles of his feet. The beating restored the circulation and the "dead" man was soon back at work again, thankful for the beating he had received.

Try it out yourself. If your feet hold out you may live forever.

Over in densely populated China a family pays a physician by the year for preventing sickness, instead of curing it after it occurs.

Good, sense, that.

Now comes a St. Louis physician who predicts that the time is near when we shall be doing the same in this country.

And why not?

We pay sheriffs and constables and police officers and watchmen for protecting our property from theft by the lawless element, and it works to the good of society in general.

Wouldn't it be the cheapest kind of insurance for us to pay the family doctor by the year for protecting our bodies from the ravages of disease, keeping us in fit condition, and saving us the time and expense of long sick spells?

We seem to be insuring about everything we own in this country except our personal health, and that we are systematically destroying through overindulgence and neglect as rapidly as possible.

The welfare of our country and of our persons demands an early change.

DON'T BE A FOOL

Don't be roped into buying securities by promotion enthusiasm. Discount by a generous percentage everything told you by the stock seller. "Get rich quick" schemes nearly all have a hole in them.

The average man knows nothing about buying or selling stocks. He has no experience by which to judge values. He knows little or nothing about the companies whose securities the stock peddler has for sale. Therefore, before parting with your hard-earned dollars for some rose-tinted stock about which you know nothing, consult your bank or bond house whose business it is to know what are legitimate propositions. An honest company will have no trouble in establishing its credit before offering its securities for sale.

This is your home. It is where you make your money, where you raise your family, where you enjoy the society of your friends, where you spend your hours of recreation, and where you reap the greatest joys of life. What are you doing for the home community that does so much for you?

Many women believe in charity beginning at home. They don't like having to sponge on their neighbors.

Make a practice of really earning your salary and you will soon be receiving a bigger one.

WHO WANTS GLASS EYES?

Comfortable, easy vision is the real test, regardless of how well you may see. Health is the basis of all true success in life and the condition of your eyes may affect your health.

You may walk with a wooden leg, you may chew with false teeth, but you cannot see with a glass eye. Glass eyes are cheap, but who wants one? Guard your eyes.

"At Last—A Real Job and Real Money!"

"And if only I'd started earlier, I could have had them five years ago. I didn't realize at first what spare time study would do for a man. Taking up that I. C. S. course marked the real beginning of my success. In three months I received my first promotion. But I kept right on studying and I've been climbing ever since."

Every mail brings letters from some of the two million students of the International Correspondence Schools telling of advancements and increased salaries won through spare time study. How much longer are you going to wait before taking the step that is bound to bring you more money? Isn't it better to start now than to wait five years and then realize what the delay has cost you?

One hour after supper each night spent with the I. C. S. in the quiet of your own home will prepare you for the position you want in the work you like best.

Yes, it will! Put it up to us to prove it. Without cost, without obligation, just mark and mail this coupon.

VISIT OF GRAND PRESIDENT

Grand President Mattie M. Stein paid her official visit to El Carmelo Parlor No. 181 Wednesday evening, April 25th. Fifteen different parlors were represented. Grand Inside Sentinel Lucille E. Hammersmith and Past Grand President Margaret Grote Hill were also present. A business meeting and initiation were held and the officers of El Carmelo Parlor were complimented by the grand officers on their efficient work. Mrs. Stein delivered an interesting address, telling of the wonderful work the order has accomplished for homeless children. District Deputy Josephine Johnson spoke of the energetic work of the members of El Carmelo Parlor. Several visiting members also gave interesting talks. Misses Madeline Lombard and Erminia Biggio sang several songs. President Emma Schwarz presented gifts to the grand president and District Deputy Josephine Johnson on behalf of El Carmelo Parlor. Refreshments were served in a novel way by the social committee, consisting of Mrs. Matilda Herring (chairman), Mrs. Emma Schwarz, Mrs. Josephine Johnson, Mrs. Alice Jones, Mrs. Mabel Lorenz, Mrs. Ida Callan, Miss Violet VerLinden and Mrs. Fredericka Volkman of Colma and Mrs. Eldora Clinton of Bear Flag Parlor, Berkeley, who all worked untiringly for the success of the affair.

HIGH SCHOOL WHIST

The whist party given by the students of Jefferson high school, under the direction of Principal Neil O. Best, last Friday evening for the benefit of gymnasium equipment was a success, socially and financially.

A large number of tables were filled with players from all over the county. Home-made cake and coffee were served by the students. The coffee was donated by Nicholas Doukas of the Colma Grill. The prizes were also donated, and the donors have the thanks of the pupils for their kindly help.

Prizes were awarded to the following, in the order named: Joseph Millett Jr., $5; Gertrude Gehring, quarter of a ton of coal; Willie Jost, camera; Janet Fellman, $2; Ruth Crucholl, tea set; Mrs. Cochran, box of candy; A. Moore, vase; Tom Harrison, fern; Mrs. E. Foss, consolation.

STUDENTS HIKE TO TAMALPAIS

The students of Jefferson union high school went on a hike to Mount Tamalpais and Muir Woods Wednesday of last week. They left at 7 o'clock, accompanied by Principal Neil O. Best and Miss Belloni, one of the teachers. At 11 o'clock the summit was reached and all enjoyed a hearty lunch. Games were played and pictures were taken. The pupils are eagerly looking forward to another hike in the near future.

SAN BRUNO

Mrs. Julia Williams of Fourth Addition is numbered among the sick.

While at work in the city W. Palmer of Sylvan avenue last week came to grief, fracturing a rib.

Professor Rapsey is going to keep apace of the times and have a new home near the present one in Huntington Park.

T. Marecek of Fourth Addition "enjoyed" an enforced idleness the fore part of the week, due to an attack of the grippe.

Owing to Mrs. Liddle's departure from San Bruno, Mrs. A. S. W. Grundy will henceforth direct the Yeomen orchestra.

The Currall family, until recently living in the Herald building, are now comfortably located in the Liddle home in Third Addition.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson of First Addition have bought a lovely house at San Mateo, where they hope to make their home shortly.

If the recommendations of Police Commissioner Smith and Chief of Police Meehan carry, the much-needed city jail will be located in the old offices of the lumber company as soon as they are vacated.

Mrs. E. J. Levy, whose condition last week for a time gave rise to grave fears, continues to improve slowly but steadily and the prospects for a complete recovery are growing brighter daily.

Although the city election is yet eleven months off, one new candidate is being frequently mentioned for one of the two seats on the board of trustees to be refilled next spring, as is also a new candidate for city treasurer.

Next Monday evening the P. P. P. boosters from various sections of the county will be feted at California Hall. It is hoped to whoop things up on this occasion for the grand Pageant of Progress to be held at San Carlos from May 26th to June 3d.

The Kritchners, who for the past year conducted the Candy Kitchen on San Mateo avenue, have closed the doors and moved to Berkeley. George Clark, proprietor of the building, and Mrs. Clark have again moved into the living rooms in the rear of the store.

T. T. McNeely of Fourth Addition, who has been bedridden for many months and accordingly had to be removed to the hospital when his helpmate, who nursed him tenderly, took down sick, is again expected at home this week. Mrs. McNeely having sufficiently recovered to resume her duties.

After a comparatively short stay at Eureka, whither she had gone with her husband to live, Mrs. Lairson, cousin of Mrs. T. Marecek of Fourth Addition, has again returned to San Bruno, being unable to stand the fog up north. Mr. Lairson, who is a railroad man, will seek a transfer farther south.

Carl Unterein of Fourth Addition, whose return from the hospital at San Mateo after a long stay there was chronicled in last week's Enterprise, and who, according to the doctor's report, stands a good show for complete recovery from his serious injuries, will shortly have to submit to a minor operation to have a bone splinter removed from his left leg. Aside from this, Carl is getting along nicely, everything considered.

In order to be able to furnish an adequate supply of water to meet the growing demands, it is planned to assess each lot throughout San Bruno $10 to rehabilitate the water system in general and in San Bruno Park and First and Fourth additions to levy an additional assessment of $30 a lot for entirely new distributing systems in these sections. The mode of paying, cash or on the long-term bond plan, will be left to a vote of the people.

Since our last correspondence the stock apparently has been less partial as to district than ordinarily, for after first brightening the Schumacher home in Third Addition he flew to Fifth Addition, bringing the Chabriers a baby girl, and then on his return visited Mr. and Mrs. William Maher of San Bruno Park, presenting them with a baby girl, the first-born. At last accounts the three mothers along with their infants were getting on nicely.

The peddlers' license problem, which has ever been a bone of contention, is not unlike a two-edged sword. If peddlers are permitted to come in as a result of a low license there is no doubt they will take much money out of San Bruno, which our merchants feel should go to them. It is pointed out if a high license is imposed a first-class fruit and vegetable stand will immediately be opened. Have our grocers, who are most insistent on the high license, ever stopped to think how a first-class fruit and vegetable stand will affect their fruit and vegetable departments? And who knows but what the new fruit and vegetable stand, once established, will branch out and carry a full line of groceries.

NEW DAILY NEWSPAPER APPEARS AT REDWOOD

The Redwood City Tribune, San Mateo county's newest newspaper, made its first appearance Tuesday of this week. The first issue was in the nature of a booster edition for Redwood City, and is quite metropolitan in appearance and make-up, being sixteen eight-column pages. In an editorial statement the publishers stated that the regular issue of the Tribune will be of four eight-column pages.

The new county seat newspaper carries Associated Press news service, the first used in this county. Altogether it is a good looking sheet and very evidently in the hands of experienced newspapermen. It is published by George F. Morrell, manager of the Palo Alto Times. Sam H. Winklebuck is manager and John G. Robinson editor.

If mud will make all complexions beautiful, like the magazine ads say, then why are there so many muddy complexions?

Theological Problem.

Bishop Nicholson said at a reception in Washington: "Complex theological arguments do very little good. They often remind me of the little boy in the lion house at the zoo."

"Mamma," he said, 'do lions go to heaven?'

"No," said his mamma; 'they don't.'

"Do bishops?'

"Bishops? Why, of course. What a silly question!'

"Well, then, mamma," said the little boy, 'suppose a lion should swallow a bishop?'

"Philadelphia Ledger."

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be," said Shakespeare, but what would become of the banks if they followed Shakespeare's advice?

SATAN

By H. De Vere Stacpoole

A Romance of the Bahamas

Copyright by Robert M. McBride & Co.

"HERE'S THE CHART!"

SYNOPSIS—Bobby Ratcliffe, wealthy, twenty-two and romantic, is cruising on the Bahama bank with his friend, Sir William Skelton on the yacht Dryad. He visits an old fishing schooner, the Sarah Tyler, owned and sailed by Satan Tyler and his sister Jude, the latter having the appearance and manners of a boy. Bobby and Skelton disagree and the younger joins the Tylers, for whom he has taken a great liking. The arrival of one Carquinez, shady character of the bank, with his companion, Sellers, disturbs the Tylers. Carquinez has learned that Satan's father had been aware of the location of a sunken vessel believed to be a Spanish treasure ship, and he has been spying upon the Tylers in an effort to discover their secret.

"Well, then," said Satan, "we've got that far, and it comes to terms. What's your share to be for help in collaring the stuff and dispose of it in Havana?"

"Two dollars out of every three that we make," said Sellers promptly.

"There's the saving, you can't do that alone, or your dad would have done it promptly; then there's the cashing of it, you're lost men if you try that job on by yourselves. Why, there's not another man in Havana could do it only Cark, and even he couldn't bring the stuff into Havana harbor! It'll have to be landed back of the island, north of Santiago. Lord knows what he'll have to pay!"

Satan cogitated for a moment.

"I'll meet you," said he at last. "I'm not set on big money. Anything more?"

"No, that's all," said Sellers.

Carquinez nodded approval, and lighting another cigarette leaned back in his chair.

"And what's this gentleman doing in the business?" asked Sellers, referring to Ratcliffe.

"Oh, he's standing out," said Satan. "He's just on a cruise with us."

"Yes, I'm standing out," said Ratcliffe. "I'm in it only for the fun of the thing, though I'm willing to help."

"Well, I reckon you'll have fun enough," said Sellers, "if we've got foul of the customs, or if some other hooker comes poking along while we're salving. You're British, aren't you?"

"I am."

"I thought so. Come out for a spree?"

"You may put it like that."

"I didn't get your name."

"Ratcliffe. My father was Ratcliffe the shipowner, Holt & Ratcliffe."

"Lord—love—a—duck!" said Sellers. "You're not wanting for money, I reckon. Well, this gets me, it do indeed! Holt & Ratcliffe—should think I did know them!"

Satan grinned. "Well," said he, "we've fixed things so far—two out of every three dollars to you and no deductions."

"That's it," said Sellers.

"And now we've fixed terms," said Satan, "I want to know all about this hooker."

"Which was your meaning?" asked Sellers.

"The wreck."

"Listen to him!" cried Sellers. "Mean to say you don't know all about her?"

"N'more than Adam. I've heard from Pap she was called the Nombre de Dios, and was full of gold plate got from churches; but that's not much more than a name and a yarn. I've never banked much on the yarn. Seems too much of the New Jerusalem touch about it for me."

"Well, I'll tell you," said Sellers. "She weren't no ship with gold plates—your dad got that wrong—she was a big Spanish ship out of Vera Cruz making for Spain. She had a cargo of timber, some of them heavy foreign timbers that don't float. She'd got aboard her, besides the timber, more'n a million dollars' worth of gold—Mexican gold most of it, Spanish coin some of it. Lopez was the name of the skipper, and he laid to bank that gold for himself. Him and the mate were the only men in the know about that gold beside a supercargo by name of Perez."

"Well, he colluded together with them two guys to sink the hooker in six fathom water out of trade tracks, give out that she'd sunk in a gale, and come back in a year or two and collar the boddie. They had her bored and plugged for the game, and when they got her to the location they pulled out the plugs, and she went down without a sneeze, natural as a dyin' Christian."

"They got the boats away in order, and the crew was got off to a man; but that crew never got ashore. Maybe it was something wrong with the grub or the water, there's no saying, but they never got ashore to turn witness. But them three guys had taken the dinghy, and they were picked up and landed somewhere on the gulf, fat and well."

All through Sellers' recitation Carquinez had sat nodding his head.

"They slung their yarn," went on Sellers, "and made all good, and it was only left for them to wait awhile and hire or steal a likely boat to pick up the stuff, when the yellow fever took the supercargo and the mate, leaving Lopez to fish for himself."

"He got back to Havana, which was his natural home, and there he put up with his son, who was a trader in tobacco. He put the son wise about the wreck; but he wouldn't give the location away till it was time to go and pick up the stuff, which wouldn't be for a year yet.

"Then he up and died, and the son started to hunt for the chart and couldn't find it. The old guy had given him everything but the chart with the location marked on it. It wasn't a proper chart, neither; just a piece of paper with the thing done rough, but giving the bearings. And it was never found—not by the son. The grandson found it—and where do you think? Pasted into the lining of an old hat. That wasn't so long ago, neither, and what do you think that fool of a grandson did? Well, I'll tell you what he did. First of all he comes to Cark here, and tries to get him onto the job on a ten per cent basis, Cark to risk his money and reputation for a lousy ten per cent on what might be only the bones of an old ship. He let out her name and history and everything but the location.

"Cark wasn't having any on those terms—was you, Cark?—and he told the chap to go to Medicine Hat and pick bilberries. The chap goes off and what does he do but tries to get up a syndicate between himself and two yeggmen without a keel to their names! Ferrira was the name of one, and da Silva was the name of the other, and they held a board meeting in Diego's saloon one night and shot holes in one another in the back parlor.

"Silva and Ferrira had fixed it to lay the grandson out and collar the chart for themselves, and they'd have done it, only he wasn't backward with the shooting. Your dad was in the bar that night, and he twigged something from what they let drop before they went to the back parlor to hold their meeting. Then when the shooting began he was first into the room, and collared the chart, which was lying on the floor. He was always quick on the uptake, was your dad. Being a knowledgeable man, he reckoned Cark was the only chap in Havana to help him take the stuff and clear it, but before he could conclude business with Cark he up and died."

"I'll Meet you," said He at Last. "I'm Not Set on Big Money—Anything More?"

Cark nodded.

"That was so," said he.

"Well," said Satan, "we've got the whole yarn now, and I'm wishing to be done with the business. I'm pretty near sick of you two guys trailing after me, and I'll hand you out my belief for what it's worth. It don't seem natural to me to find gold in a hooker like that, just for the picking up, and I'd sell any man my chances for a thousand dollars. I'm just talkin' out of my head. You know what I am. I'm content to run small. We've made the contract. I don't want it written down and signed, seein' that the law couldn't help me. I'm only sayin' that if you lay me crooked I'll split. Got that in your heads?"

The high contracting parties on the other side nodded assent.

"That bein' settled," said Satan, "here's the chart."

He produced a metal tobacco box and took from it a folded piece of paper, which he laid on the table before Sellers.

The effect was magical.

Carquinez sprang from his chair like a young man, came behind Sellers, and, bending over his shoulder, looked. Ratcliffe, though out of the business, was as excited as the others. Satan alone was calm. He had been carrying the thing about so long that it had probably lost its freshness of interest.

Sellers, without speaking, stared at the chart before him.

Rum was shown, and then, southwest of Rum cay, a line of reef marked "Lone Reef," and in red ink, connected to the reef by a red line, the name "Nombre de Dios" could be made out, the "Dios" very indistinct at the frayed edge of the paper. In the top right-hand corner the latitude and longitude were written, but so faintly that it would have required close study in a strong light to make the figures out.

Nobody bothered about them. Lone reef was on all the charts, and the name was enough.

"I've been by there," said Sellers at last. "And I've never seen signs of a wreck."

"You wouldn't," said Satan. The hull of that reef must have raised itself since she was sunk, for the water in the creek doesn't cover her at high tide and low tides it's pretty near empty. But she's been under right enough, years ago, for the decks are coraled over, hatches and all, and the stuff's turned to iron cement with the sun and weather. We've got to dynamite her open."

"Sure," said Sellers; then, after a moment's pause. "It'll be a big job, if it's what you say. I had it in my mind that she was a diving job in shallow water—never thought of the blasted coral."

"Well, it's there," said Satan, "near a foot thick. You've got to drill it, and stick dynamite cartridges in the drill-holes and fire them. Got any dynamite aboard?"

"Not an ounce."

"We might make out with blasting powder."

"Yes, if we'd got it," said Sellers. "There ain't no use worrying, we've got to shun out of this back to Havana and get the explosives. Question who'll go for them, us or you?"

"Not me," said Satan, "not if she was to lie there till the last trumpet. We're underhanded, for one thing, and, for another, I'm gettin' little enough out of the job as it stands, without fetchin' and carryin' for you."

"Then we'll go," said Sellers. "Give us ten days, counting accidents, and we'll pick you up here."

"Why not at the reef?" asked Satan.

"Don't matter," said Sellers. "Here or there, it's all the same to us; ain't it, Cark?"

Cark nodded assent, and Satan, recapturing the chart, folded it up and put it back into the tobacco box.

"Right!" said he, placing the box into his pocket. "Here you'll find us."

They rose from the conference table, and Carquinez stood holding his coat together with a veined and knotted hand while the visitors were making their adieux.

Alongside the Sarah they found Jude waiting to receive them. She had been cleaning up the abalone, was dissatisfied with the result—quarter of a matchbox full of seed pearls—and said so.

It seemed to Ratcliffe all at once that a critic had come on the scene. He had forgotten Jude in relation to the deal over the wreck, and he was wondering now how she would take it. The female does not always see eye to eye with the male, as many a business man has discovered on revealing a transaction to the wife of his bosom.

"Well, what you been doing, anyway?" asked Jude, suddenly opening her batteries.

"Doing—which?" asked Satan. "Oh, you mean with Cark. Well, I've settled things with him, fixed it up so's he's goin' to help."

"What's he askin'?" said Jude.

"Well, it's this way: He'll have to do the wreckin' business, and then if the stuff's got he'll have to run it ashore, and after that he'll have to get rid of it. I'm givin' him two dollars out of every three."

"Oh, Lord!" said Jude. "Why didn't you give him the lot?"

"Now look you here!" cried Satan. "I don't want no sass! Who's runnin' this show, you or me? How do you know what I've got up my sleeve? Have you ever known me done on a deal yet? Now you take my orders where Cark's concerned and take them smart, with no questions! Lipplin' your betters!"

Satan turned and went below.

"Jude," said Ratcliffe. "Suppose you had all the money off that old wreck, if the money is there, what would you do with it?"

"What's the good of askin' me things like that?" said Jude. "I'd precious soon do something with it!"

"No, you wouldn't. You'd put it in the bank, and then your trouble would begin."

"Which way?"

"Well, you'd have it in the bank or invested and it would bring you in, say, twenty thousand dollars a year; well, you couldn't spend that on the dock-side, could you? You wouldn't be able to spend it at all unless you gave up the Sarah and lived ashore in a fine house with a carriage and horses and servants, and to do that you'd have to become a lady—or gentleman."

hastily put in Ratcliffe, Jude suddenly threatening to turn on him. "You'd have to do that, and you'd have to do more than that; you'd have to learn all sorts of things. Can you write, Jude?"

"Which way?"

STORIES of AMERICAN CITIES

Fashion Now Adopting the Manly Art

CHICAGO—A bloody nose is now the only blot on the "cutcheon of many a Gold Coast family. Their sons have taken up boxing. His sire may wear spats and his mother may carry a lorgnette, but if he's a really modern Chicago society man he'll spend at least an hour a day with the gloves. And he'll smear his classic profile with blood, real and red. For the city's young boxers scorn the "gentleman's reducing exercises."

Pity the poor pugilist. The gentleman in the morning coat and the gardenia has driven the "pug" out of his haunts and forced him to seek the tea dance which his socially prominent brother has deserted for the roped arena.

"The 'pros' sure, they can come up here between 2 and 4 in the afternoon," explains the manager of a noted gymnasium, "but the rest of the time we want the place clear for that other gang, the business men. They're the guys that come regular. And they don't want violet perfumed gloves, either. They're tough eggs. And they can take a knockout just like a 'champeen.'"

The same spirit is echoed by the boxers. "We box as near like professionals as we can," one of them stated. "We don't want a set of ladies' rules and fat men's reducing exercises. We want to box."

"Benny" Yanger, boxing director at the Chicago Athletic club reports a record-breaking attendance at his polite prize fighting lessons. His junior class numbers ten and twelve-year-old flyweights who will inherit several millions of dollars one of these days.

"But they all pack a mean fistful," he declares.

New York.—The wealthy and fashionable residents of Fifth, Madison and Park avenues are having their boys learn to box. About thirty sons of New York persons prominent socially attend daily a gymnasium on Madison avenue, where boxing, wrestling, jiu-jitsu, fencing, and all sorts of "manly arts of self-defense" are taught. Fancy hearing the well known announcer begin:

"Ladies and gentlemen, in this corner we have Nathaniel Wales II, weighing thirty-nine pounds, ringside, seven years old, of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, and Fifth avenue, New York city."

"And in this corner we have Stewart Davis, Jr., weighing forty-one pounds, ringside, eight years old, the pride of Madison avenue, who will meet today in a three-round bout for the child championship of the four hundred."

The two youngsters were introduced in such a bout a few days ago in a regular roped arena at the gymnasium with a dozen or more mothers and fathers present.

Too Much Success Spoils This Husband

NEW YORK—There's no room in the lap of luxury for domestic tranquillity, avers Mrs. Sally White, whose twenty-six years include five of marital joy and sorrow.

Mrs. White is suing her husband, Abraham White, for separation, $30,000 annual alimony and $15,000 attorney fees.

"We used to get along tolerably well on $50 a week," Mrs. White charges. "In fact, we were much happier then than now."

"Ever since we have been sitting in the lap of luxury I have been paying the highest price a woman can pay. The best years of my life I have spent in misery and fear."

She charges her husband became subject to moods following his phenomenal business success and would unmercifully beat her and then try to appease her with valuable gifts.

She says her husband is a Russian and can't quite get the idea of "when in America do as the Americans do." She says he tried to subjugate her to the plane of Russian women.

In asking for $30,000 yearly alimony and $15,000 counsel fees, Mrs. White mentioned the following expenditures of her husband as proof of his ability to pay the alimony she asks:

Eleven thousand dollars spent on six weeks' visit to Europe in 1922.

One thousand four hundred dollars paid for cabin on Aquitania.

Thirty-five thousand dollars spent to furnish home.

Defendant insured for $300,000.

In 1921 bought especially built auto for $13,000.

Lost $25,000 on races in 1922.

In past four years has lost $100,000 in Wall street.

Spends $15,000 yearly for clothes for Mrs. White and self.

Has lost $25,000 in past two years playing dice.

In 1920 paid $380 weekly for suite at Hotel Nassau, Long Beach.

Tips caddies $5 after each round of golf.

Has headwaiter of popular Broadway cabaret in his employ that he, White, may always have a table.

Allows her $200 a week for table expenses.

But all this pretense at good living, Mrs. White declared, means nothing to her if she cannot have domestic tranquility.

"Down With the Unsightly Billboard!"

LENS FALLS, N. Y.—Tax the users of billboards by the square inch, was the slogan with which Joseph Pennell launched a recent attack against the lurid advertising which he says makes the American people the laughing stock of the world.

"That is what is done in France," continued Mr. Pennell, long an earnest worker against the billboard, which he charges has all but ruined the beauty spots of this country. "In France merchants cannot afford to advertise this way. The government collects a tax for every square inch of space rented out to the bill-sticking vandals who go around debauching the landscape with their cheap posters and gaudy pots."

The latest recruits to the anti-billboard army in America are the women of Glens Falls, who are doing what the women in the suburbs of Philadelphia did when they started to free that district of obnoxious signs. They have obtained the co-operation of local merchants, who have agreed to give up billboard advertising. And the movement bids fair to become a state-wide campaign. Letters have been sent to 300,000 women, all members of important clubs and organizations throughout the state, and many of these women will help in the work. Officers of automobile clubs have agreed to use their influence with big advertisers and with club members toward meeting the demands of public opinion. Meetings are planned and a strenuous crusade to clear the state highways of unsightly advertisements.

How heavy the tax proposed by Mr. Pennell should be or whether it should be federal, state or county were matters he said must be decided. But Mr. Pennell added that the tax, to be effective in doing away with the billboards, would have to be a stiff one.

Mr. Pennell deemed important the action taken by local women's clubs, civic societies and automobile associations in different parts of the country to bring down the unsightly billboard. Near Philadelphia, he said, the women had succeeded, after canvassing the local merchants and getting their co-operation, in wiping out the signboard evil in several suburbs. Similar action has been taken successfully in a few of the Western states.

"Out in Colorado they have put through a law to stop signboards, after a visitor had said: 'You have two things in Colorado, silver and scenery, but you have painted your scenery with patent medicine.'"

Little Willie's Night in an Ice Box

CAMDEN, N. J.—The janitor of the Elks' lodge rooms here was working in the back yard of the establishment when he heard cries coming from an ice box in the yard. It was a boy's voice shouting, the voice of a very small boy, and the cries were these:

"Hey, Mister! Let me out. I'm freezin'!"

The janitor hastily unlocked the door. Into his arms tumbled Willie Elbertson, six years old, crying and almost exhausted from cold and hunger. He had been locked in the ice box all night while policemen, relatives and friends had searched Camden and other cities in the belief that he had been kidnapped.

The janitor fed Willie and let him warm himself at the big kitchen ranges of the lodge rooms and then took him home. There, after Willie had been fed again and warmed before the fire, cuddled in his mother's arms, he told what had happened.

He said that he and two boys had gone into the back yard to play hide and seek and that he had crawled into the icebox to hide and that while there another boy dropped the hook on the outside and ran away.

Willie did not worry for some time, because he thought the other boy was only joking and would soon come back and release him. But the boy did not come and Willie tried to attract attention by pounding on the door and the walls of the big box. He could make nobody hear, although all during the night he kept hammering with all his feeble strength against the box.

Willie said that it became terribly cold after he had been in the box a short time and that he got terribly afraid, because all sorts of horrible things came creeping out from the corners and glared with their wicked eyes. But he recalled that he had all ways been a good boy and had not played hooky from school for some time, so he figured that they probably would not bother him if he acted brave.

At bedtime Willie's voice was husky and he had a slight cold, but he said he felt all right, except that he would always be hungry.

"If it hadn't been for the Tanlac treatment, I don't believe I'd be on the job today," was the positive statement of F. J. Husted, 617 Murry st., Oakland, Cal., foreman at the Oakland Meat Packing plant.

"For three years I suffered with stomach trouble and during the last eight months of my sickness I could only work about half the time. I had absolutely no appetite, and the little I did eat disagreed with me fearfully. I didn't know what it was to get a good night's sleep, and I fell off thirteen pounds.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

TIT FOR TAT

A printer in Fort Worth got peeved when a doctor asked for bids on a thousand letter-heads. So he replied: "Am in the market for bids for one operation for appendicitis, one, two, or five-inch incision—with or without ether; also with or without nurse. If appendix is found to be sound, want quotation to include putting same back and cancelling order. If removed, successful bidder is expected to hold incision open for about sixty days, as I expect to be in the market for an operation for gall-stones at that time and want to save the extra cost of cutting."—Bertha Pruitt, Waco, Tex.

BEST PLACE TO RAISE BABIES

If you have to be born and want the very best chance to survive, choose the Pacific slope for your birthplace. That favored—we are not bragging or boasting now, but merely stating statistical facts—region has the lowest infant mortality rate, the tallest and heaviest children in the U. S. A. Owing to the equable climate, the lack of extreme temperatures, the abundance of room, the intelligence and high earnings of the population plus well organized and financed health departments, the number of babies who are claimed by the Reaper in the first year of their existence is exceedingly small. During the past three years, for instance, the records of the lowest infant mortality of all cities with more than 250,000 inhabitants have been captured annually by Seattle, San Francisco and Portland. In the next smaller class, 100,000 to 250,000 population, Oakland and Spokane carried off first honors. In cities having from 50,000 to 100,000 inhabitants, Berkeley, Long Beach, San Diego and Tacoma have been consistently leading the country, while Astoria in Oregon, Aberdeen in Washington and Pasadena, Santa Cruz and Richmond, all in California, have led the infant-saving procession among the smaller communities.

Babies may be a personal liability, but they are a community asset. The climate of the Pacific Coast is indigenous, grows wild and is free to all, but the community effort to keep infant mortality down costs money. The Far West has been willing to spend it to make its infants safe. Other regions can do likewise, but if they want their infants and mothers to have the benefit of our free, wild and indigenous climate, they must move they bodily into it.—May Sunset.

HIRAM JOHNSON INSPECTS EUROPE

Having done his darndest—and succeeded—to keep the United States from plunging into The Hague court door to the League of Nations, Hiram Johnson has departed for Europe incognito; that is, he announces that he intends to take no part in European problems, being determined to stay just as far away from them personally as he would have the United States keep out. French, British and German statesmen who were hopeful that he would ease their burdens will be greatly disappointed.—May Sunset.

Winterhalter bought the house next to her home on Grand avenue, and Kaufmann brothers purchased the house on Grand avenue now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weller.

THE LITTLE HOME PAPER

The little home-town paper never likes to spread itself. It's quite content to hold a place upon the pantry shelf. It's satisfied to chronicle in its deliberate way the happenings of Tiny Town where solid home folks stay. When Harvey Griggs sells off his corn it registers a scoop. When Hiram Baxter drives to town it tells it with a whoop. And as we read its columns down we find such news as these: "Bill Watson's stayed at home this week—he's wobbly in the knees." "Miss Nancy Peters won the prize for pickling Baldwin pears." "Joe Hunter just received a lot of fancy rocking chairs." "Ol' Gran'ma Penfield is over now a bad attack of gripe." "Tim Craham's bought some stout chains so his brand new car won't slip." "The Duncans and the Cadys will motor to New York." "Bill Lambley cut his finger bad while trimming some side pork." "The Ladies' Aid Society will give a social tea." "Dick's apple cider gives the boys an imitation spree." "Hank Forney shot a timber wolf three weeks ago last night." "The horseshoe tossers weigh the steel and make the ringers light." "A little grocer has arrived—thanks, Ray, for them cigars." "The Sheik will hit the Op'ry House and then you'll see some stars." Thus does the home-town paper shine through every listless hour; and congressmen take off their hats, acknowledging its power.—George P. Paul in National Printer.

YES, AND MARBLE BUSTS

A jovial individual saw an announcement in an ironmonger's window the other day. It read, "Iron sinks," and he went in and told the man that he knew iron sank. "Yes," said the smart shopkeeper; "and time flies, but wine vaults, grass slopes, and music stands; Niagara Falls, moonlight walks, sheep run, Kent hops, and holiday trips; scandal spreads, India-runder tires, the organ stops; the whole world goes 'round, and trade returns." The jovial one bolted.

YOUR BEST INVESTMENT

One of our local townsmen was asked the other day what he considered the best investment he had ever made, and his reply was quick and illuminating. "My wife!" Whether a wife may be considered an "investment" or not, she certainly is his most priceless possession, if she is a good woman. A few men overlook this fact in their selfishness, only to learn of her true value when it is too late. If it were not for the uplifting influence of the women of this world, life would not be worth living to any self-respecting man. It is through the love of women mainly that men are able to acquire and retain the inspiration necessary to battle the forces of evil that are continually attempting the destruction of morality and common decency.

The influence of the church does much along these lines, but even that influence is due in a great measure to the efforts of pure womanhood.—Exchange.

PLINY THE GRATE

Less crime in the days when the prisoner and not the sentence was suspended.

According to a recent estimate England has 938 poets, three of whom have not lectured in this country.

"Life-term inherits fortune." That is real nice. Now he can get a law, an incurable disease and a pardon.

Missionaries must hurry if they would get Africa sufficiently civilized to furnish troops for the Christian nations.

Some girls can make up their faces more easily than their minds.

BORN

MARTIN—At the South San Francisco Hospital, March 23, 1923, to the wife of Frank A. Martin, a son.

Not His, but Wife's Will

"Before I married," said the middle-aged man, "I was terribly extravagant. I went to theaters and dances all the time, smoked cigars, drank champagne. But now—well, I live a quiet life at home, smoke a pipe and drink water."

"What a strong will it must need to change like that," said the young bachelor.

"Yes, she has a very strong will," replied the married man.—Pearson's Weekly, London.
